ATTITUDE

+

ACTUAL NEED

POLICY

In this event, I got some really useful insights, some about the attitude as a designer that needs to really get involved, some about their urgent needs, such as more 24-hrs restaurant, more of them said the policy level help is what they need. Remarkably, all those practical opinions are from people who know night-shift workers or had the experience of night-time job I realized only raising public awareness or addressing their needs temporarily may not enough. It is their voices that need to speak out and delivered.

24HR CAFE: DISCUSSION & DEMONSTRATION

PRECEDENTS STUDIES
FUNCTIONALITY, DEMONSTRATION & CURIOSITY

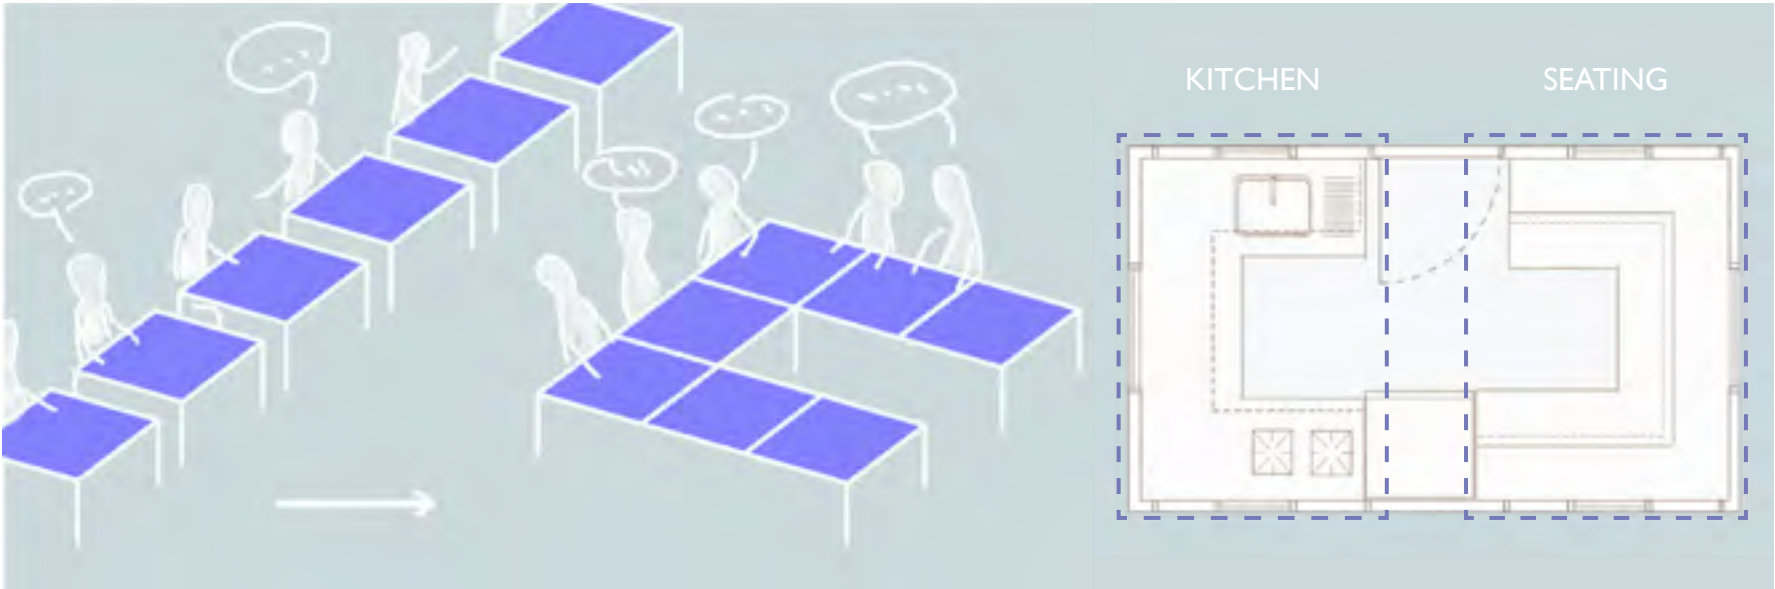

Cabman's shelters - 1875

By Cabmen's Shelter Fund

The Cabmen's Shelter Fund was established in London, in 1875 to run shelters for the drivers of hansom cabs and taxicabs.

In terms of design, this structure places the necessary functions in a very limited space. And the layout of the circle seating area promotes communication between cabmen and staff, unconsciously forming a group of their own.

Circle seating area: It triggers a feeling of community and a well functioned mini space.

The Movement Café - 2012

By Morag Myerscough

The Movement Café is a temporary café and performance space designed by Myerscough and commissioned by Cathedral Group in Greenwich, London.

Myerscough set the words into the design of the café, painting them on large wooden panels to become an eye-catching fixture noting the presence of the new social community space. The artist branded the Café using geometric graphic and outstanding colour giving the structure an ability of communication.

Colourful grafics and text give the struture a sense of "demonstration".

Cabinets & Curiosities - 2016

By Chamber Gallery

New York's chamber gallery presented 'cabinets and curiosities', exhibiting experimental furniture, objets d'art and curios by nine designers.

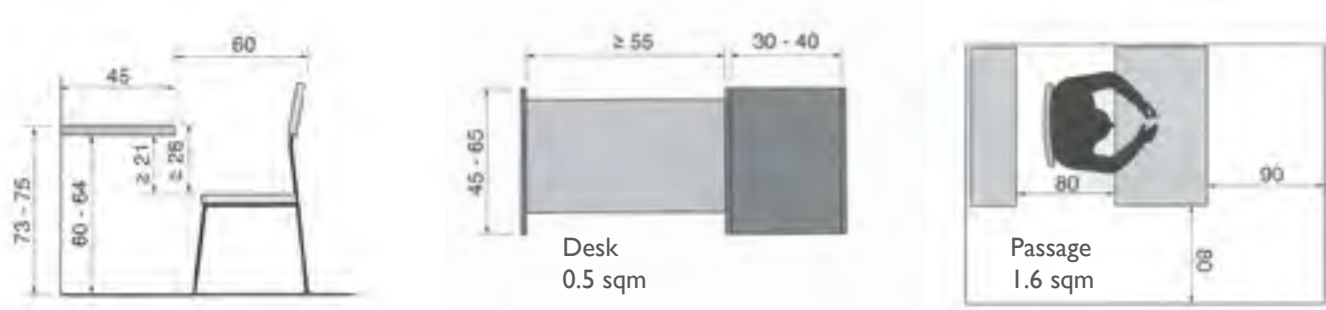

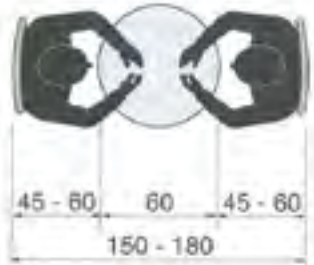

The form of cabinets reflects the metaphor of curiosity, as Juan Garcia Mosqueda comments. 'chamber is, after all, a modern-day cabinet of curiosities.'. Furthermore, the simple act of "opening the doors" creates an interactive connection between audience and exhibits. The invisibility triggers visitors' curiosity as well as attracting the attention of the audience.

Interactive installation triger curiosity.
